Casa Grande Notes.

CASA GRANDE, Ariz., June 3rd, 1930. Although the days are warmer, the thermometer indicating 100 to 106 degrees Fahrenheit in the shade, no one is as yet uncomfortable as there is generally on the hottest day of a gentle breeze—indeed we are not so far away from the Gulf of California that with no obstruction to speak of, we may not receive the benefit of a breath from the salt water now and then. The nights are perfect, so cool that the energies of the day are restored and one wakes after a refreshing sleep like a new being. No mosquitoes to torment, nor any of those bugs that our neighbors north, in California are infested with, and which must be endured uncomplainingly and with stoical silence. Mention is made here of flies, because no one here has made a complaint of them, and in California are looking for a paradise on earth may know that here at least, we are free from pests of all kinds. If strangers who live afar are looking for a paradise on earth, they should come here and see for themselves.

Next week Rev. J. Monfort will hold church services at Silver King and Reymont camp.

L. O. G. T. will meet in Masonic Hall next Wednesday night. A full attendance is desired.

Indian Rumors.

Tucson Star June 5.

Yesterday morning there was a ripple of excitement by a Mexican spreading a report that the Shaw family, six miles from Pantano, had been killed by Indians, and their house burned down. The Star gave little credence to the rumor, but set about to ascertain the foundation of the same, and soon found that it was utterly groundless.

Another one.

During the afternoon a Mexican boy came in from the foot hills of the Santa Catalinas, seven miles north of Tucson, and reported Apaches there, and that they had shot at him and his brother. A party of citizens hastened to the scene but found no Indians. It is more than probable, however, that the Mexican boys saw that they reported, and it is a fact that there are a band of about

Twenty Apaches

off the San Carlos reservation—some of them with passes and all well armed. They have been seen a dozen or more times during the last ten days by many different ranchers and stock men on the San Pedro valley and in the Santa Catalina mountains and in the San Pedro valley. They claim to be out hunting and gathering cactus fruit. Last week these Apaches were seen not far from Crowley's ranch and were armed, and the party who saw them made them lay down their guns and come to him. He declares that one of them was

"THE KID."

If this be so it is reasonable to suppose he is hunting recruits for another raid into Sonora. It is stated on good authority that with his band were in the vicinity of Fort Apache some ten days ago. Be this as it may.

It seems to be well established that there are about twenty Apache Indians who belong to the San Carlos reservation, all armed, prowling around the foot hills of the Rincones and Santa Catalina mountains, and this at a time when the people are naturally alarmed on account of the murder of Harlan in Rucker's canyon not long since.

What right have these armed Apaches to leave the reservation, what right have they to cross the boundary armed or unarmed? They are fed, clothed and sheltered at the expense of the government, what need have they for arms? If they were without guns they could not do any harm on or off the reservation.

It appears that the people will be compelled to take into their own hands, which is this: when any of these Apaches are found off the reservation with guns in their hands to treat them as hostile, for the chance taken may mean death. This is the only remedy and it should be applied at once. If this band of Apaches continue to remain off the reservation, armed as they are, causing alarm at a time when there are rangers in the field, let the remedy be applied at once. If the government will insist on arming the Indians on the reservation and then allowing them to leave the reservation, it must take the consequences. The armed Apache outside of the line of his reservation must be treated as a hostile. This is the remedy.

Early Fruits.

(Yuma Times)

It may not be generally known, but it is nevertheless true, that shipments of ripe figs from Yuma to the San Francisco market are bringing extraordinary prices. So far seventy-five cents per pound is the lowest rate that has yet been quoted and at this figure it can easily be seen that a fortune awaits the man who plants early figs. The earliness of the fruit production in this county over any other section east or west, gives it an important advantage, permitting the asking of fancy prices for apricots, figs, lemons, grapes, oranges, and dates. These can be delivered in Los Angeles and San Francisco weeks before it can be done by any portion of California, and that by the time the fruit is matured the Golden State crop shall have been entirely harvested and the profits derivable from such shipments are enormous and, without doubt, this fact will make the Yuma grower the grandest and most prosperous agricultural, viticultural and horticultural region in America, for what has been said of fruits applies very nearly to the grains, textiles and vegetables.
